Clad in armor and swords in readiness, Michael joins a group of re-enactors for a taste of the action. Mercifully unscathed, he makes songs for Droitch to learn about how a low boatman became king of salt and lived in a beautiful castle, an unexpected scene in the Midlands countryside. Michael's journey ended in Wolverhampton, where he heard Queen Victoria had made an emotional visit, signaling the end of her life in exile from public life after mourning her husband, Prince Albert. Send your feedback to hello@ausv.io, we will appreciate your thoughts. This app helps me plan my TV/recording for next week. I find it to be accurate and easy to use. The hardest part (not related to the app) is keeping up with changes to the broadcaster's name and the wide range of stations available, but this app is very good at having a range of stations available to choose from. I highly appreciate the automatic color coding of the movie in the Tutorial and the ability to click on the movie to learn a little about it, in the same way you can click on any program in the Tutorial for summaries and tips on whether it is repetitive or new episodes. Users can also search for programs as favorites, which are then shown in the Guide in blue. This is a great feature, but it can be even better if the user has the option to request blue that does not apply whenever the episodes are repeated. I was meant to try all the free tutorials to air TV available and found this app to be the best so far. User-friendly, let you list channels in any order that suits you, displaying channel numbers that are more than just icons like some apps, allows you to highlight your fave genres in different colors, highlight your regular shows as favorites then also show you upcoming episodes, exact show times, every show has links to google, wikis, etc. For the price of two weeks of TV, which is less accurate, you get real value for your bucks. Developers are always open to requests and suggestions and actually respond to emails in a timely manner. I have and will continue to recommend this app to all and sundry. Keep up the great working boys. Thanks for considering 🙏🙏🙏 have been using this app for quite a few months, and have found it useful. Ads pop up and block the screen every time I open an annoying app, but it can often be closed easily. I'm using an ancient iPad 4. The last few days, when I opened the app, an ad from Chemist Warehouse opened, but it didn't load fully and some tables in the ad, for Bubs Baby Formula were blacked out. Since the ad doesn't load fully, there's no way to close it because there's no Close button. This makes this app completely unusable on my iPad 4 because I can't close the ad so I can use this app. Developer, Sladjan Ilic, Ilic, that your app's security practices may include data processing as described below.
